The Juror

The Del Mar College Drawing and Small Sculpture Show is now in its 42nd year. Throughout this time, the exhibition has developed a reputation for quality and consistency, and it has amassed a remarkable collection for the college with its purchase awards. I am honored to be selected as juror for this year's show.

For almost forty years I have been active as an artist, exhibiting and traveling extensively. I know there are many artists working seriously and responsibly all over this country, producing art that is personal, thoughtful and visually engaging. Over the last few years, however, I have become increasingly disenchanted with the contemporary art world. Much of what I see in galleries, and unfortunately in museums, strikes me as pretentious, often narcissistic, formally inept and, most importantly, not visually interesting. Political and social statements do not necessarily make good art.

It was, therefore, very gratifying to see the quality and diversity of the work submitted to this exhibition. Selecting works from photographic images (no matter how good they are) is always a compromise. The reality is the work itself. It was then even more satisfying to view the actual works in the gallery space. I feel this is a substantial and stimulating show with a diverse group of thoughtful, well-crafted artworks. I am proud to be part of the experience.
